The 1943 Index

Students of Massachusetts State College have passed through a year of turmoil and upheaval brought about by a war which, although being fought oceans away, has yet not failed to leave its impressions upon even cloistered college lives. Students have seen classes and teaching staff diminish in number and have said goodbye to many of their friends. The editors and staff of the INDEX feeling that, in these times, especially, each student should have something by which to remember the familiar scenes, the fun, and the friends that have made up their college life, present despite the difficulties and discouragements of this year, this the 1943 INDEX to you the students of 1943.

SEVENTY-FOURTH EDITION OF THE COLLEGE YEARBOOK

In Dedication

In 1897 North College was modernized by the introduction of running water and a quiet young Goessmann chemist by the name of Peters was graduated by the Massachusetts Agricultural College. There is no sinister connection between these two historical data, but it might be said that since his graduation a good deal of water has run over the test tubes. For example: a Ph.D. from Yale: eight years of teaching at the University of Idaho; two years of further study, in Goessmann tradition, at Berlin. Eventually, in 1911, his Alma Mater recalled him to fill the chair of Inorganic and Soil Chemistry and for thirty-two years he has done so with industry, exactitude, patience and loyalty.

There is in Dr. Peters a deep and abiding faith in people and institutions and ideals. His research is still in the field of agricultural chemistry to which he was first called. For fifteen years he has been treasurer of the Grace Episcopal Church; for about half as many he was secretary-treasurer of the Associate Alumni. His family life is intimate and rich and deep. Even for the casual observances of the Metawampe Outing Club he is punctiliously on hand.

Unassuming but not timorous in judgment, contemplative but with a clear and happy mind, scholarly but not pedantic, aspiring but never aggressive, Dr. Peters is one whom men of this college have cherished, for exactly fifty years, as teacher, as colleague, as friend.

President's Message

This Spring has seen four hundred, then six hundred and finally a thousand aviation cadets marching across the campus of Massachusetts State College. Thus has the college contributed directly to the training of men who will soon fight in all parts of the world.

Although next Fall will find the student body not more than half as large as in 1943, a college program will be carried through with the determination not only that men and women who come for regular college work will be taken care of but also that they will find the college, its customs, and its traditions unchanged.

Men of this college who are in service on the battle fronts of the globe are now facing experiences which will be exceedingly hard. When these men return, they will be received back into college in such a way that their life plans as far as possible may be carried out. They know that we as a college believe in them and have confidence in the service that they are rendering in this war to preserve our ideals.

Alumni

Fighting this war is the chief occupation of Massachusetts State College Alumni. So reports Alumni Secretary Emery. The roster of Alumni in Uncle Sam's uniform now lists the names of more than eight hundred men and women—in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, Marines, WAACS, WAVES, Army and Navy Nurses Corps, and Merchant Marine; and of this number seventy-five percent are commissioned officers. They are currently dispersed all over the United States, on the seven seas, in Alaska and in Puerto Rico, in Iceland and the islands of the South Pacific, in North Africa and in India.

Six Alumni already have been decorated for gallantry in action. Lieutenant Carl Wildner '38 has received the Distinguished Service Cross for his part in General Doolittle's expedition over Tokio, and has also received the Chinese Flying Cloud Medal from Madame Chiang Kai-shek. Lieutenant Warren Bryant '39 has been awarded the Silver Star by General MacArthur. Lieutenant George Spelman '39 has received the Air Force medal for gallantry, an Oak leaf cluster, a further award, and has been commended by King George VI of England for his work as one of the crew of a flying fortress. Lieutenant Walter Miles '41 was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross by General Doolittle. Lieutenant Lawrence Schenck '34, after having been wounded during the North African campaign, has received the Silver Star for gallantry. Corporal Wilbur Tirrell '35 has been awarded the Silver Star for action in the Southwest Pacific.

Lieutenant Francis T. Fanning '39, U.S.N.R., an officer assigned to the heavy cruiser Northampton, is already a veteran of seven major engagements in the Pacific. After his ship, the Northampton, was sunk, Fanning was given leave to return on furlough to his home in Milton. While at home he was interviewed by a reporter from the Boston Traveler.

"We were with other ships off Guadalcanal," Fanning said. "It was mid-November. We knew the Japs would come down from the north and make a try at landing more men and supplies in their attempts to hold Guadalcanal positions.

"Pitch dark, not a light showing anywhere. And then the shooting started.

Ensign Arslanian '42

S/s Drew '41

Captain Pitts '40

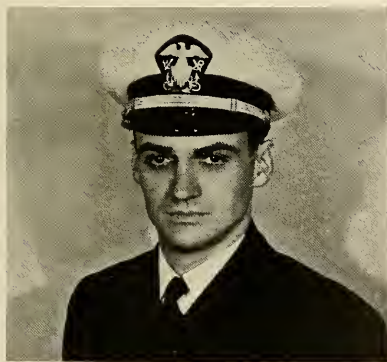

Lieutenant Jackson '34

"I wish I could tell about it clearly, but it was just noise and confusion from all sides. The Navy has already made it clear how important that scrap was. We claimed a Japanese battleship. Somewhere between twenty thousand and forty thousand Japanese troops were drowned when their transports were hit and went down under our guns. The Jap fleet scattered and disappeared in the night."

In telling about the sinking of the

Ensign Chilson '36

Northampton, Fanning said, "It's a funny thing about torpedoes at night. You can see the wake from the phosphorescent effect, but you can't see it soon enough to dodge usually."

"I was lucky...the torpedo hit was uncomfortably close. If it had been closer I would have gone up in the air, and I wouldn't be here today."

"Fire broke out immediately...we tried to control it, but couldn't...this time there were no more shots in our direction...I believe it was because all the Jap crafts had been sunk."

"The Marines said afterwards that no landing was made, and the Navy reported that we got two large destroyers or cruisers, four other destroyers, two transports, and a supply ship."

Although an impressive portion of the Alumni are actively engaged in duty with the Armed Forces, others are rendering valuable service in civilian occupations—many in fields directly allied to the war effort; in the agricultural industries, especially in the production of food; in medicine, dentistry, nursing and in other fields connected with public health; in sciences such as chemistry, physics, engineering, and bacteriology.

Frederick D. Griggs

In Memoriam

When Twilight Shadows Deepen, a nostalgic memory for alumni of Massachusetts State College, became a fact for its composer, Trustee Frederick D. Griggs, '13, in Springfield, December 22, after an illness of six weeks. Musically-minded, he wrote the songs which enabled the Class of 1913 to win the inter-class song contest at Commencement four years in a row; and not only played in the orchestra, but led the Band and the Glee Club.

A natural leader, he was class president, member of the Senate, and high in Phi Sigma Kappa councils. He also found time to be college reporter for Springfield papers, college postmaster in a North College cubbyhole, head waiter at Draper Hall, and a member of the championship intercollegiate rifle team.

Founder of the Middlesex County Extension Service, Mr. Griggs helped organize the Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation. He served two terms in the Legislature, and had been appointed trustee continuously since 1928. Member of the Association of Governing Boards of State Colleges and Universities, he was for several years secretary-treasurer in charge of program and meetings. During the past seven years, he was particularly active, through his office of executive secretary for the Springfield Taxpayers' Association, in municipal affairs and in constructive efforts towards improved government.

Frederick M. Cutler

In Recognition

So patriotic is Frederick Morse Cutler that friends attributed his nervous breakdown last summer partly to inability to aid the war effort actively. Chaplain of the 55th Artillery in the A.E.F., he saw action at Aisne-Marne, Champagne, Oise-Aisne, and Meuse-Argonne, and emerged a lieutenant-colonel in the United States Army Reserve. He has been chaplain of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, department chaplain of the Massachusetts Commandery, Military Order of Foreign Wars, and councillor for the Massachusetts Order of Founders and Patriots. Dr. Cutler wrote The Old First Massachusetts Coast Artillery in War and Peace, The 55th Artillery in the A.E.F., a monograph on military conscription, and Sociological Laws. Included in his pre-M.S.C. past are Congregational pastorships and a professorship at the University of Puerto Rico.

A Columbia man with a Ph.D. from Clark, he arrived in 1926 to combine the sociology courses then divided between two departments. He was responsible for the outline of courses in sociology, a program comparing so favorably with those of larger colleges that his department is the only one in the Division of Liberal Arts qualified to submit candidates for the doctor's degree. A scholarly man, Dr. Cutler was enthusiastic about his courses and their importance in modern life.

Remembering Pearl Harbor

Last Fall the Reserve Officers Training Corps enrolled 532 Statesmen, including 86 advanced military students and 446 basic trainees, or enough to organize a regiment consisting of three squadrons of two troops each. This was the highest number ever to be enrolled in the R.O.T.C.

Fifty-eight of those taking advanced military instruction were juniors, who were inducted as privates in the Enlisted Reserve Corps especially assigned for R.O.T.C. training. This group is the largest number chosen for advanced instruction since the inauguration of this military course. By the first week in January two out of three regular undergraduate male students at State were enrolled in the E.R.C., of which 86 were completing their training as advance course cadets in the R.O.T.C., 305 were unassigned, 35 in the Air Corps, 19 in the Navy, 9 in the Marine Corps, 3 in the Signal Corps, and 1 in the Coast Guard. The military majors finished the school year, but most of the others in the E.R.C. were called on March 1st.

Two weeks after the majority of his students departed, Colonel Donald A. Young left for active duty with the General Staff at the headquarters of the combat forces in Washington. Colonel Young came to State in 1939 as a major, was promoted to lieutenant colonel in 1940, and to colonel in 1941. He declared his professorship of military science and tactics and command of the R.O.T.C. here "one of the most pleasant details" of his army service.

His successor, Colonel H. T. Aplington, was also his predecessor, having been commandant here from 1935 to 1939. Under both administrations, the State R.O.T.C. unit maintained its army rating of excellent, as indicated by the blue star on the cadet uniform.

M.S.C.'s Rifle Team won 23 out of 30 matches to place high in the intercollegiate tournaments. In the First Service Command Matches it was third. In the Hearst Trophy Matches in the same area State's first team placed third and the second team eighth. In the New England Rifle League, the Rifle Team again took third with an average of .750. One-third of the fifteen high scores in the N. E. League were M.S.C. men: Milton Howe '45, in fifth place with an average of .297.5 out of a possible 300; Henry Drozdal '44, sixth with .279.0; Thomas Mitchell '46, ninth with .277.9; Nello Fiorio '45, tenth with .276.3; and Edwin Marvel '46, thirteenth with .275.2.

Lieutenant Winslow E. Ryan, coach of the team, stated that the team's successful season was largely due to good freshman and sophomore turnouts, to the expert direction of his assistant coaches, Staff Sergeant Glennon and Corporal Ghormley, and also to the use of the new weapons building behind North College.

The selection of the team's nineteen members was based on the records of the 32 candidates during the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations. Once on the Rifle team, the regular or alternate status of each member was determined by each match's performance.

Just a week before Santa sleighed down, the military men celebrated the Yuletide. On December 18th the members of the Military Ball Committee, Chairman Russ McDonald, David Marsden, Mervin Magnin, Frederick Burr, Edward Nebesky, Frederick McLaughlin, and Robert Place, introduced Peter Cutler and his Totem Pole Orchestra to the M.S.C. mob in a fireproofed Drill Hall. At this only formal of the semester, the military majors appeared in full dress uniform.

Young, then commandant of the corps, presented her commission and gold cross-sabers to the Honorary Cadet Colonel, Sophomore Barbara Walker. The H.C.C. not only entered and left under crossed sabers, but reviewed the spring formations. Miss Walker was elected under a new system. Two representatives from each sorority and also from the non-sorority girls formed the group from which the military majors chose their Honorary Colonel. The spurred soldiers voted the day before, but announced their choice only at the Ball. Cadets from Boston University and the University of New Hampshire were invited as guests of the corps.

Something new was added at the Military Ball: war stamp corsages. A fragrant gardenia surrounded by six ten-cent stamps on a heart-shaped frame, the whole enhanced by gleaming satin ribbon, decorated many a maiden's shoulder or hair, and at the same time helped furnish ammunition for Guadalcanal. These corsages were sold under the direction of the Student War Council, operating independently from the Ball Committee.

In spite of the war, the department was not quite as busy as it planned to be. Military Week, which was to take place during Easter Vacation was cancelled. There will be no trip during the summer, not even the week trip the military majors took through southern Vermont last summer.

Razoo

As October breezes cooled the Amherst air, "welcome" was extended to four-hundred and twenty-one new Staters. In spite of the war the enrollment exceeded last year's by forty-eight. With one hand the sophomores clasped the hand of the freshmen while clutched in the other were the traditional maroon cap, a paddle, and a list of rules.

The "chapeaux" were soon donned. Butterfield beauties were attired in refugee model berets, while maroon skull caps surrounded the upper region of the fashionable frosh fellows. The rules caused many students to modify their way of life. They learned to avoid numeraled paths, to steer clear of the central walk to Stockbridge, and to avoid sophomores whenever possible. The maids abandoned paint boxes and strove for that "natural" look; new hair styles were created; fashions ranged from prudery with umbrellas on sunny days to immodesty when dickeys and pajamas were worn outside in the chilly air. Nursery rhymes and confessions of being an ignoramus driposilium were frequently heard.

Oft on a stilly, misty morn the sound of voices and the resounding whack of paddles awoke dormitories, sororities, and fraternities as freshmen obediently serenaded their worthy upperclassmen.

The Class of 1946 became acquainted with "ye olde College Pond" as the Riviera of M.S.C. Coeds attired in house-coats and turbaned towels looked to it as a fisher's haven. The boys in exclusive pond parties discovered its swimming pool potentialities, although some declared it a better skating rink.

*I'm rather dubious, plain to see
Fighting was never the sport for me.*

In the wrestling and boxing matches, or the formal part of Razoo, the freshmen managed to take two out of a possible three wins. The victorious sophomores were Herb Gross and Art Peck. New Statesmen on the winning side of the wrestling bouts were Charles White and Frank DeJoia. Frank Ditunno and Don Roy scored for the Class of '46 in boxing.

Though handicapped by a four to two score, the sophs entered the annual battle of brains versus brawn waged across the college pond with high hopes. The freshmen, after a well-matched tug, managed to pull them through the muddy water and assert the tradition of freshman wins.

The pushball contest at first appeared to give the Class of '45 a chance for victory. Though the freshmen outnumbered the sophs the huge ball bounced and rolled precariously near both sides before it was finally forced into upperclass territory, ending Razoo with a six-to-two score.

Hopping, hats, and hazing have now been forgotten and the Class of 1946 has become part of M.S.C. . . . but how eagerly it is awaiting the Class of '47.

*My roof's beat in; I'm in quite a fix
But it's all for the glory of '46.*

Dad & Mom

Hello Mom! Hi Sis! How you doin', brother? were combined to form the chorus of greetings heard on campus May 2nd as mothers and high-schoolers flocked to State to help carry out a most successful combined Mothers' and High School Day.

Heading the committee which aimed to keep everyone busy were Happy Sargeant and James Graham, whose plans for the day included registration, campus tours, visits to classes. The R.O.T.C., too, passed in full review. Afterwards weary mothers had opportunity to rest at sorority luncheons.

Part of the afternoon was devoted to the Roister Doisters' performance of The Torchbearers, followed by water ballet and a baseball game with W.P.I. After dinner at fraternity houses or at Butterfield, a performance by the combined Glee Clubs climaxed the day.

A band concert concluded the weekend Sunday afternoon. Mothers and daughters and sons will not soon forget the loveliness of the college in the spring.

Because of the war, Dad's Day activities were limited to a leaflet published under Barbara Smith's direction which showed M.S.C.'s cooperation with the war effort in campus and classroom. Others assisting her were: Betty Bates, Marion Bodwell, Lucille Chaput, Dave Cooley, Kay Dellea, Bob Dietel, Mary K. Haughey, Dan Horvitz, Daphne Miller, Horace Milliken and Don Parker.

Mother's Day along with many other traditional activities is slated to become temporarily a thing of the past but it is hoped that after the "duration" it will be renewed with new enthusiasm.

*It's hard to think of what to say
To folks on this, their honored day.*

Informals

Podolak, Ryan, O'Brien, Larkin, Brutcher

Blame it on the war if you will. The fact remains that this year, formals were few and far between; and informals are fast becoming more than adequate substitutions for camouflaged Drill Hall episodes of other years.

In charge of the plans for informals in 1942-1943 were Matthew Ryan, Edward Larkin, Edward Podolak, Robert O'Brien, and Frederic Brutcher. The schedule was so arranged that campus smoothies were able to 'swing and sway,' well no, not to Sammy Kaye, but to the beat of Bob Miller, Bob Chapman, or the Rhythm Makers every month.

For relaxation from grinding, change of atmosphere, and an all-round good time, Statesmen know that at the Drill Hall hops are tops. A by-stander might hear a beam or two creak as the none-too-sturdy building becomes mobbed with jittering Janes and jolly Jims. But who, though Drill Hall walls should fall, would be found standing by holding up the wall at an M.S.C. informal?

In addition to Drill Hall informals, the famous Massachusetts State stand-bys, vic parties, remained and grew in favor among study-weary students along fraternity row. Traditional vic parties were as usual the mainstay of every college weekend including Winter Carnival, Military Ball, and Amherst Weekend. These special weekends and practically any weekend would find fraternities and sororities deciding on a theme; decorating their houses; selecting chaperons and records, and a cozy out-of-the-way nook for the former. Then with lights dimmed, couples would enjoy an evening of informal dancing uninterrupted except for record-changing.

*The night is dark, so mind the floor.
Get out of the Drill Hall and start to neck.*

Phoebe and Pop

Operetta

The curtain rose on the sixteenth century Tower Green on November 27 and 28, when the combined Glee Clubs and Sinfonietta presented the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, Yeomen of the Guard, in Bowker Auditorium.

Under Doric's direction, singing, acting, lighting, costumes, and setting pleased responsive audiences on both nights. Freshman Beatrice Decatur as Elsie Maynard, and Gordon Smith as spirited Jack Point who finally meets tragedy, turned in excellent performances as the strolling singers. Jack Foley as the head jailor portrayed a grotesque and tragic character; while Ray Lynch aptly played the role of Colonel Fairfax. Marge Stanton, veteran of three former operettas, surpassed her fine reputation as she played Phoebe Meryll. Helen Van Meter, Roger Biron, and Leon Barron characterized Dame Carruthers, Sir Richard, and Sergeant Meryll respectively. The minor roles of Kate and Leonard Meryll were played by Betty Bates and Porter Whitney. The bright red costumes and stirring voices of the men's glee club as the yeomen added vigor to the show, and the women's glee club as citizens, vivacity and color.

Honored Prof

The late beloved Professor Frank A. Waugh served M.S.C. in many ways. He developed the department of landscape architecture; planned many campus beauty spots; assembled photographic files in the Library and Wilder Hall; taught horticulture and wrote books on it; directed Wilder Hall's construction; originated the circulating picture club and the Art Exhibits held in the Physical Education Building and Memorial Hall. But perhaps his greatest service, and the most appreciated by the students, is the Fine Arts Series. Held on Wednesday afternoons, its programs have expanded the college's horizons and aided the metamorphosis of "Mass. Aggie" into Massachusetts State College.

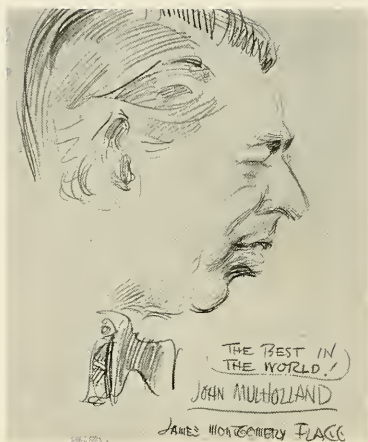

The programs were inaugurated November 11th by Professor Waugh and Anna Laura Kidder in a joint flute and piano recital. It was followed, in order, by Henry Jewett Green speaking on porcelain; Professor Frank P. Rand retelling the story of General Custer and the Little Big Horn; Ethel and Otto Luening, soprano and flutist; Professor

Fred C. Sears speaking on Labrador handicraft; Riders to the Sea by Synge, presented by members of the dramatic workshop; The Lost Silk Hat by Lord Dunsany, by the same group; students Beatrice Decatur, soprano, and John Del Delevoryas, pianist; John Leland Nichols, faculty pianist; Dr. Charles Fraker presented his Spanish-American Fiesta, assisted by Mrs. Fraker and Ida Moggio; Miss Carolyn Ball, pianist; President Baker speaking on great orators he has heard; Doric Alviani, accompanied by Marge Stanton; Steve Hamilton '31 speaking on Labrador; the Smith College Madrigal Club; Professor James Robertson speaking on the Family Art Show; the Smith College Quartet; Miss Horrigan's speech class; Mrs. Walter Hargesheimer, dramatic soprano; and the John Duke Trio of Smith College.

M.S.C.'s Social Union programs are an attempt to bring some of the best artists to the campus, for the enjoyment of the students and faculty.

The series opened on October 16, 1942, bringing to State the distinguished poet of the folk rhythm, Robert Frost. He commented on poetry, past and present, and read some of his most popular poems, such as "Birches," and those which he believed conveyed special meaning, such as "Mending Walls." The audience was spell-bound during his lectures and went away with a better understanding of the New England poet and his poetry.

On December 11, the Roister Doisters sponsored an interclass play competition. Each play was cast, directed, and managed by students, under the supervision of Professor Rand. "Sleeping Dogs" was the senior play; "Evening Dress Indispensable," the junior; "Bride Maid," the sophomore; and "Fireman, Save My Child," the freshman offering. Each went off so smoothly as to suggest careful rehearsal, and each deserved the applause of the audience, but the freshman play was judged best. Everyone connected with the production received a volume of Lillian Hellman's plays.

Anne Brown, one of the most outstanding artists to appear at Social Union this year, included compositions by Schubert, Schumann, and Brahms, Negro spirituals, and American folksongs on her program. The number which the audience will probably remember longer than any other she sang is Summertime from George Gershwin's Porgy and Bess. This is truly Miss Brown's song, since it is the one which made her famous as the heroine of Catfish Row. Everyone enjoyed her selections; and her charm and beauty as well as her beautiful voice thrilled the audience.

The annual concert of the State Glee Clubs took place on Lincoln's Birthday. The program began with choral work of several types; included were "Brazilian Lullaby" and "American Street Cries." The second part consisted of excerpts from the Doric Alviani-Robert McCartney operetta titled United We Love, done in the informal style of the Glee Clubs. The finale was an inspiring tribute to Lincoln, featuring the recitation of the Gettysburg Address against a musical background.

In contrast to preceding musical entertainments, John Mulholland, magician, appeared on February 26. His mystification quickly explained his popularity throughout the world. Tricks with cards and rings fascinated the audience, and the pleasing personality of the prestidigitator amused it. His appearance was both successful and as enlightening as a program of sleight-of-hand can be.

Another musical program was presented on March 18. The artist, Joaquin Nin-Culmell, pianist and authority on Spanish and South American music, is an associate professor at Williams College. Nin-Culmell firmly believes that a knowledge and better understanding of Iberio-American music would promote pan-American friendship.

These were the Social Union programs for the college year of 1942-43. It was a successful year in that each was well-attended and greatly appreciated by students and faculty.

Carnival

Daphne and her Dames

With midyears and snow as a preface, Winter Carnival Weekend, on January 28, broke the ice for second semester social activities. The 1943 committee under the direction of Hunty Burr '43 provided a busy program for outdoor enthusiasts. Snow sculpture themes varied, and, although a war theme dominated, Alpha Gamma Rho took first place with The Icy Grip of the North personifying Cold touching Earth. Tau Epsilon Phi's America on Guard won second, and Q.T.V.'s arctic scene third.

On Friday afternoon Robert Gore '46 won the four-mile cross country ski race, with runner-up, Joseph Tosi '43 only thirty seconds behind. That night Dobbin-drawn sleighs whizzed couples to and from the Drill Hall, where gym characteristics were well disguised by flashes of brilliant color reflected to the shadowy walls from three revolving mirror balls. While Joe Marsala's band played, Dorie Alviani, Vernon P. Helming, and David Morton chose Daphne Miller as Carnival Queen, and State Coeds Mary K. Haughey, Alice Maguire, Jane Murray, Janet Race, and Margaret Stanton as her court.

Saturday's skating races and hockey game were cancelled, but not so the ski races. Dorothy Dunklee '43 won first place in the women's cross country, with Dorothy Hurlock and Barbara Billings '46 in second and third. Skiing Queen Dorothy Dunklee also won the women's slalom. In the downhill races held on the new ski course behind Thatcher Hall, Roger McCutcheon '45 finished first, followed by Donald Story and Harry Thorne '46. Joseph Tosi won the slalom.

Though the basketball game with Wesleyan was close, State lost 34-38. Afterwards, many couples attended a Drill Hall tea-dance, where Queen Daphne presented various awards. Saturday evening found Carnival ending along with fraternity vic parties at eleven-thirty.

Weekend!

Amherst Weekend! Contrary to traditional wet weather, the sun shone upon activities beginning October 30. Statesmen escorting either coeds or imports swarmed the campus, and cares of studies were put aside temporarily in favor of

Rally Rooters

Campus Varieties, a football game, and dancing.

The exciting two days started with a football rally in front of Stockbridge Hall on Friday evening after a procession of band, cheerleaders, and students had paraded through the campus. The band played, the cheerleaders yelled, the football squad was presented, faculty members spoke, and a large part of the loyal student body backed up the cheers and sang with the band. A press-box prophecy of the approaching game stirred the group into a spirited rally.

Immediately following this display of loyalty, a well-known and capable cast presented the annual Campus Varieties show at Bowker Auditorium. Hilarity was plainly evident when a mass of puns and paradoxes were flung at the audience during a series of vaudeville acts. Music—both sweet and swing, vocal and instrumental—mingled with the laughter and caused rhythmic foot-tappings. Gordie Smith, Bert Libon and Joe Masi were among those in a group of mad-house scenes. Murray Casper performed his inimitable monologue; while John Hicks and Tom Kelly enacted the typical old-time vaudeville comedians. Bea Decatur, Doris Abramson, and Ken Collard were soloists for the evening; while Peg Stanton, Doris Abramson, Ken Collard, and Leon Barron lent their voices in a series of comical songs which comprised a short "sad" tooth opera. When the final curtain had fallen, everyone reveled in reviewing the riotous performance.

In the weekend's athletic realm, State lacked Fortune's favor. Friday afternoon striving soccer players under the coaching of Larry Briggs were defeated by the Amherst booters. Saturday afternoon, amid warmth and sunshine, yellow chrysanthemums and dark glasses, programs and banners, songs and cheers, the principal feature of the weekend—the football game—was played at Amherst College's Pratt Field. The Maroon and White team, having been ably coached, put forth many good plays in an attempt to conquer the powerful Lord Jeff eleven, and many times the pigskin was very near the Amherst goal line. The playing was hard and fast; the cheering was loud and strong. Spectators did not spare their vocal chords, and the band proudly cut its capers between the halves. But the final score of the game was 43-0 with Amherst, brave Amherst, the victor.

With athletic battles in the past, fraternity houses were converted into dance halls Saturday night as the music of favorite orchestras drifted out. Couples "round-robined" during the first of the evening, but later returned to their respective houses.

The End of the Beginning

An atmosphere of eagerness and wistfulness could be felt as the seniors received their diplomas Sunday, May 23rd in as much of the traditional manner of wishing "God speed" as possible. Both the eagerness and wistfulness may be attributed to the responsibility placed upon the members of the Class of '43 as they go forth to participate actively in today's war and tomorrow's peace from the safety of their alma mater's lap.

*I guess I did it the hardest way
But what a relief was Commencement Day.*

Mary Jean Carpenter, class vice-president, set a new precedent by being the first woman to ever head the graduation program at Massachusetts State College. Her committee included Blanche Gutfinski, Stanley Hood, David Marsden, Russell McDonald, Stanley Polehlopek, Margaret Stauton and Helen Van Meter.

Commencement activities began when the seniors attended their last convocation at Bowker. Here, Daniel Horvitz gave the Senior Oration. Here, the gift from the graduating class was presented by Blanche Gutfinski. The tapping of eight seniors and seven juniors as members of the maroon-jacketed Adelphia, and four seniors and seven juniors as members of the grey-blazered Isogon was the program's highlight.

May 21st—Soph-Senior—perhaps the last big formal for the duration of the war provided one of those unforgettable memories for many. Music, a moon, the beautifully decorated "barn," the loveliness of an Amherst evening all helped to cast their spell of enchantment.

Seniors gathered together Saturday morning at Bowker Auditorium for class day exercises. President Robert Fitzpatrick returned to campus to deliver the Mantle Oration. Other speeches which followed his were the Ivy by Mary Jean Carpenter, the Campus by Agnes Goldberg, the Hatchet by Edward Nebesky and the Pipe Oration by Lester Rich, who was dressed in colorful Indian trappings. The class ode was presented by George Benoit, and the class song led by Willis Janes. Lawrence Newcomb gave the class oration, a ceremony discarded several years ago and now revived for the first time. The final act of the class day exercises was the planting of the ivy by Mary Bowler and Frederick McLaughlin.

From three o'clock to five the busy members of '43 sipped tea in Memorial Hall and listened to alumni tell of by-gone days at State and their experiences since then. A half-hour concert on the chimes helped bring to all the students' minds the important part the bells hold in memories of State.

As the sun was slowly sinking a reception was held by the President in the Rhododendron Garden. Then followed the Roister Doisters' excellent presentation of the Van Druten play, The Distaff Side.

Sunday morning graduation exercises were held, and before a congregation of friends, alumni, and students, the "sweet girl graduates" and their huskier classmates listened to an address by Governor Saltonstall, the well wishes of everyone, received their sheepskins, symbol of four years' successful study, or the same length of successful "bull and bluff," and were ready to go forth, each on his own adventure.

In spite of the aim expressed by President Baker "to have simple brief exercises in keeping with the nation's wartime economy" almost all the traditional ceremonies were preserved. However bacalaureate and the horse-show were not included in the program, and the Flint Oratorical Contest was held May 12th.

Informality was the key note of the alumni gatherings. Transportation, duty in the services and war work prevented as great attendance as in pre-war days, but there were still many fraternity and class reunions.

1943 Index

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COLLEGE
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS

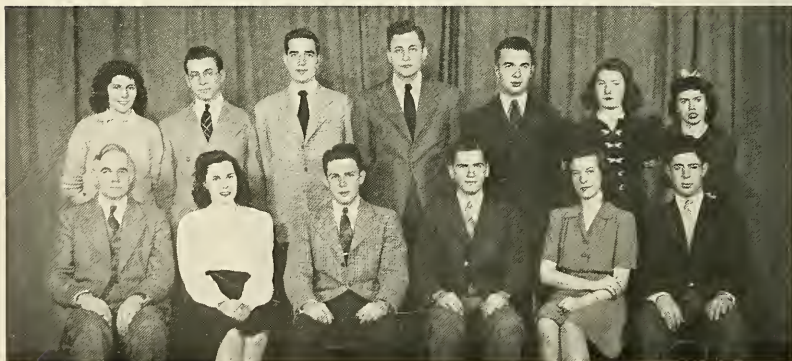

The 1943 INDEX has worked under war handicaps, as have many publication staffs in this year of shortages. First, the scarcity of copper drastically reduced the number of INDEX photos, including the beloved senior informals. Then, the small number of veteran staff members, a group further depleted by war, has had to carry a heavier burden than in previous years. This difficulty, and Editor Charlie Geer's problem of little leisure from military matters, were partly solved by the engagement of Mrs. Lois Kuralowicz née Doubleday, editor of the 1942 INDEX, as Technical Assistant from January until

Aiding Editor-in-Chief Geer were Associate Editor Helen (Donnie) Donnelly, in charge of INDEX competition in the fall, the departmental heads, and Business Manager Bob Keefe, who innovated the sale of "business card" ads in the INDEX to alumni engaged in commerce.

The sketches of Art Editor Babe Nesin have lightened the INDEX pages, supplemented by the work of Marcia Greene, who left for Cornell as a Curtis-Wright Cadette second semester. As the only Art competitor, Shirley (Sandy) Salsman worked on statistics, keeping her humor-laden pen for next year.

Henrietta Kreczko had no competitors to help her in the Photography Department, and veteran Arnold Kaplinsky left for the Service. Beyond her own camera, Henri's only material came from volunteer filter fiends about campus.

Cooperating with Business Manager Keefe were Bob O'Shea and Mel Small until the latter graduated, and new members Midge Gunther, Boo Kolb, Ellen Kane and Max Niedjela.

Lee Filios was Statistics Editor, ably seconded by Sally Boyden, who was also in charge of the files. New members of the department were Ethel Whitney, Dotty Beach, and Mary Carney.

Literary Editor Annette (Twink) Bousquet was assisted by Marie Hauck, Kay Dellea, Ruth Murray, and Jean Culbertson, but Rudy Mathias graduated. As the INDEX had no sports staff, Twink also edited the athletic résumés The Collegian's Bob Burke gallantly furnished.

Left homeless by the Army, the INDEX in March took over a corner of Professor Dickinson's office in order to continue its production schedule.

COLLEGIAN QUARTERLY

The first issue of the Collegian Quarterly, a publication by literary-minded students, faculty, and alumni of the Massachusetts State College, appeared in 1936, as a supplement to the Collegian. A few years later, it appeared between its own covers, as a separate publication, but it remained under the sponsorship of the college newspaper, and so it has continued to this day.

The periodical's policy has varied according to editorial temperament; from popular appeal to esoteric and back.

After competition, sophomores are elected to the Editorial Board of the Quarterly by members of the Board. In the second semester, a junior on the staff is chosen editor, and he holds the position from that time through the first semester of the following year. Since the war situation has upset this procedure, the Quarterly has been under the sole direction of juniors. This year's staff included Bob Kelly, editor; Leon Barron and Ted Noke, associate editors; and Wendy Brown, business manager.

Anyone with a pen spurring criticism or imagination may contribute prose or verse to the Collegian Quarterly. Selections for actual publication are made by the Board, with the advice of Dr. Goldberg, who has acted as faculty guide to the periodical since its inception at M.S.C.

It is hoped that with peace, increased literary activity will come to M.S.C. and the Quarterly.

Frosh Bible

A compact volume of accurate campus information is the Freshman Handbook presented each year to registering freshmen as a guide to the customs and campus of Massachusetts State College. In this year's Frosh Bible, a new guide map of the campus was inserted, and advertisements were mingled with songs and general rules. Pleasing to the "more illiterate" freshman eye were the novel cartoons of many phases of campus life, including social functions, varsity games, clubs, and more intellectual pursuits of classes and the laboratory.

The Handbook board is determined by an annual competition in each division such as General Information, Extracurricular Activities, Religious Activities, Student Government, and Traditions and Customs. This year's compilers were Minnie Davis, editor-in-chief; Gerald Anderson, business manager; William

Band

The 1942-43 academic year has been one of many changes for the Massachusetts State College band, the most important involving the breaking of a cherished tradition. Before this year the band was a wholly male organization, but draft boards definitely depleted its ranks. The obvious solution of admitting coeds to the band caused quite a controversy, but it was finally decided to use feminine musicians rather than to have a small, weak group. The girls handled the emergency, proving to male skeptics the place of girls in a college band—even in back of a bass drum—until the Enlisted Reserve Corps left too. Then the band broke up, through the lack of enough women musicians.

A recent innovation on campus was that of Wednesday afternoon retreats. At each of these military exercises the band rendered several marches (in order to keep warm), but its main duty was playing the national anthem as the stars and stripes were lowered before the Drill Hall.

boss of the outfit was Doric Alviani, who was aided by John Hilchey, '44, manager and ace drummer-man. The student leader, freshman Bob Bertram, directed the brass and boom on the field. These three really kept the band on its toes.

As Bob put the musicians through their paces at each band, the three majorettes swung into the rhythm. This year's twirlers were Gloria Maynard, '45, Jean Gould, '46, and Hazel Traquair, '46.

The maroon-suited players had a busy schedule throughout the fall and winter. In addition to performances at home football games, they travelled to two outside games. After hiking to the other side of town for the Amherst game, they put on a show, in spite of tired tendons, that even Amherst appreciated. This included such specialties as Anchors Aweigh, played when a group of WAVES were being seated. A slightly longer trip, to Boston, was caused by the Tufts tilt.

Indoor programs were also presented. At the special military convocation, an informal concert was presented, increasing the already patriotic atmosphere. On the afternoon following Military Ball, the annual Christmas program was held in Bowker Auditorium. Included were several well-known marches, medleys arranged by Mr. Alviani, Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition, Yankee Medley, and songs from the armed services.

The band had planned to relinquish its martial beat for a more classical style and merge with the Sinfonietta for a spring concert; but no band, no united concert.

Men's Glee Club

"Music for Morale"—is the motto of the Massachusetts State Men's Glee Club. The fact that the men's club is in existence is proof that music is necessary in war as well as in peace. Although many of the members were called into service, the club did not dissolve but kept on under the leadership of Doric Alviani.

It made its first appearance of the year as the yeomen of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, Yeomen of the Guard. Donned in the elaborate red costumes of the sixteenth-century military men, the singers added power and depth to the operetta through blended voices and precise action. Gordie Smith, Ray Lynch, Jack Foley, Roger Biron, and Leon Barron, members of the club, adeptly assumed the respective roles of Jack Point, Colonel Fairfax, Wilfred Shadbolt, Sir Richard, and Sergeant Meryll.

For Social Union Program, "United We Sing," the men's club combined with the women's glee club and produced a show that moved at a rapid pace with lively spirit. The first section contained varied selections ranging from My Baby's in Memphis to Brazilian Lullaby with new tactics of constant music without a break—humming between each separate song. The second part consisted of uniquely arranged selections of songs from the operetta, United We Love written by Doric Alviani and Bob McCartney. The tribute to Lincoln was made dramatic by the appearance of Don Parker as Lincoln and of the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by Roger Biron. The singing of a small portion of Ballad for Americans closed the program.

March 12 the glee club made its annual appearance before the New York alumni.

Women's Glee Club

Dressed in black skirts and white blouses, the Women's Glee Club of M.S.C. presents a striking outward appearance as well as deluxe harmony in their "Music for Morale" campaign under the leadership of director Doric Alviani.

This year, selections ranged from Brahms' Lullaby to the negro spiritual, Do You Call That Religion?; from Ballad for Americans to Praise the Lord.

The year's first performance was that of citizens in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, Yeomen of the Guard on December fourth and fifth. The women combined with the men's glee club to present chorus work done with a vigor which gave the performance character. Several members of the club had major roles—Pea Decatur as Elsie, Marge Stanton as Phoebe, and Helen Van Meter as Dame Carruthers.

After the operetta, rehearsals were immediately begun for the annual Social Union program given in collaboration with the Men's Glee Club. "United We Sing," a smash hit, was divided into three sections—"United We Sing," "United We Love," and a "Tribute to Lincoln."

The weekend of March 12 the glee club took its New York trip to appear before the Alumni Association there. Part of the program was devoted to the singing of M.S.C. songs, a new one, Sons of the Valley, with music by Doric Alviani and words by Bob McCartney being introduced to the lovers of the Victory Song.

Upon the invitation of the Amherst College men, the Women's Glee Club combined with them on March 21 to sing Faure's Requiem, a beautiful and difficult composition. The girls also sang in the Jones Library for the benefit of the Red Cross.

No one but freshmen donned M.S.C.'s familiar maroon choir robes this year. Forty members of the Class of 1946 proved their talents every Sunday afternoon at Vespers in Memorial Hall, adding welcome tonal beauty to the religious services.

Not long after its organization in the fall, the group appeared in the Sinfonietta Convocation, singing three numbers, Lo, a Voice to Heaven Sounding, O Holy Father, and a Chorale by Bach. The effectiveness of the choir work in spite of so little time for rehearsal pleasantly impressed the audience, and led to hopeful prophecies concerning the quality of singing in future Glee Clubs.

The freshman songsters' next special appearance was at Christmas Vespers with the Glee Clubs. Here they sang Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming, Virgin's Cradle Hymn, and the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah. Also in collaboration with the upperclass group, they sang for the benefit of the Amherst Red Cross at the Jones Library, and for the entertainment of the Air Corps cadets in Bowker Auditorium on March 19th.

This year, Sinfonietta, the college orchestra, continued its successful career on campus. Doric Alviani directed the group in songs of the day, folk dances of various countries, selections from light opera, and traditional classics.

Though the orchestra started the year with fifty percent of its membership freshmen, and many members were drafted or left when the Enlisted Reserve Corps was called up, causing a continuous struggle to find replacements, Sinfonietta presented three programs, including one at Convocation in November. Pavan, by Morton Gould, with Bob Radway '44 performing the trumpet solo, was an instantaneous hit, while selections from Tschaiowsky's Sixth Symphony were equally well-applauded.

Once again Sinfonietta accompanied the annual operetta, this time Gilbert and Sullivan's Yeomen of the Guard when it was presented by the combined glee clubs, and furnished the musical background necessary for a smooth production.

Plans for a musical season finale, a mixed performance of the combined Band and Sinfonietta, had to be given up.

The Statesmen, men's quality quartet, started out with Whitney, Foley, Biron, and Barron as members. "Make the best of everything" was their motto, and they were obliged to do so at their first appearance, a Social Union Concert, as one of the boys was quarantined because of scarlet fever. Director Doric, the inimitable, stepped into the tenor role and the resulting quartet brought forth abounding laughter as it donned rigs of the gay nineties and rendered I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now with all the proper sentimental effects. Soon Porter Whitney, Leon Barron, and Roger Biron were called into the service, leaving Jack Foley the only veteran. With two concerts in the offing, Alec Campbell, Joe Corriveau, and John Giannotti were chosen to fill in. Working with Foley they rehearsed diligently, made negro spirituals their specialty, and presented some before the New York Alumni group during the Glee Clubs' spring trip and locally at a Red Cross benefit in Amherst.

M.S.C.'s male octet, the Bay Staters, busy with Glee Club duties and studies, was unable to rehearse and so was unheard for the first time in years.

Bay Statettes

Four misses make a hit—not in baseball, but in M.S.C.'s girl quartet, the Statettes. With Marge Stanton the only veteran, two girls from the freshman class, Bea Decatur and Lee Hodges, were chosen to fill the roles of first and second soprano respectively. Sophomore Barbara Bird provided the necessary tone for the first alto. Rehearsing under the leadership of Doric Alviani, the group quickly united to produce sweet tone and downright swing. Its rendition of There Are Such Things impressed the audience at the Social Union Concert in February. As an encore, the quartet harmonized on Fooling with the Other Woman's Man, a song which caused smiles and foot-tapping. Acting as accompanist, it added much to Gordie Smith's singing of Jenny and Bea Decatur's In April. When the glee clubs made their trip to sing before the New York Alumni Association, the Statettes went too, and displayed the talent they subsequently proved at the Jones Library concert.

The Bay Statettes, feminine octet, did not appear for the first time in many years because of the constant demand of their Glee Club work.

Roister Doisters

For the second time in its history, the Roister Doisters this year presented an interclass contest of student-directed, one-act plays. On December 11, at Bowker Auditorium the freshmen took honors with a delightfully melodramatic presentation of Ned Albert's Fireman Save My Child. Professor Rand, faculty advisor of the dramatic club, presented a copy of Lillian Hellman's plays to each member of the cast and staging group, as well as to Director George Burgess.

The sophomore class under the direction of Irene Strong and Patricia Andersen staged Bride Maid by Stella Armstrong; the juniors, directed by Lee Filios, produced Evening Dress Indispensable by Roland Pertwee; and the veterans of '43 presented John Kirkpatrick's Sleeping Dogs.

Judgment of interclass plays was based on choice of play and casting; setting (including costumes, make-up, and lighting); direction (groupings, movements, tempo, stage business); acting (voices, memorization, pantomime, absorption, and characters); audience appeal (illusion, entertainment, or other objectives).

The four casts were invited to join the Roister Doisters, increasing the membership of the Thespian group to approximately sixty students.

Players make up

Perhaps an even greater feature of this year's Roister Doister activities was the spring play, May 8. The Distaff Side by John Van Druten, which ran on Broadway in 1934-1935 was the drama chosen for presentation then and at commencement. Realistically telling the story of four middle-aged daughters who finally accept convention after being explained to each other by their elderly mother, it was an excellent vehicle for the largely feminine cast. All back-stage officials were chosen from those who took part in the competitive plays.

Officers of the year have been president, Larry Newcomb; vice-president, Lurane Wells; manager, Bob Goldman; technician, Charles Schauwecker.

Although most of the work done by Roister Doister members in the past thirty years, has been pleasant and light, there has been a hidden purpose in the minds of every actor; that of upholding stage popularity and furthering its position at Massachusetts State College.

The Debating society of M.S.C. did not decrease its activities because of war; rather, the emergency prompted a "victory" program consisting of extra work in practice debates and laurel wreaths in a majority of its battles. Cooperation with local discussion groups was promoted to a greater degree than previously since transportation shortages obliged the club and its freshman group to debate with such near-by colleges as Amherst, A.I.C., and Tufts. The usual southern trip in the Spring was abandoned.

Newest addition to the society was Mark S. Rand as coach. Mr. Rand has made debating his sole interest and came well recommended from his work in high school forensic circles. Assisted by Manager Leon Weeks and President Bob O'Shea, he furthered the society's spirit of determination and interest.

Once again representatives of the society, along with delegates from many other colleges, attended the Model Congress held at Rhode Island State College in April. The delegation presented bills to abolish the Electoral College in presidential elections, and to give the president the right of item veto. A special dinner was given as a conclusion to the season.

February hay ride

With trips to Vermont crags and New Hampshire hills a distant post-duration dream because of the ban on pleasure driving, the Massachusetts State College Outing Club added another scarlet or green patch to its collective dungarees for moral support.

In the fall several Saturday hikes gladdened the pantheists, the exercise enthusiasts, and the fresh-air fans. Two square dances in the first semester were sponsored in cooperation with the 4-H Club, but that attended by O. C.-ers hardly enough to bicycle to Springfield College was strictly an Intercollegiate Outing Club Association affair. Singing old songs, drinking choruses, spirituals, and a few gruesome ditties in the Ravine was a heartily enjoyed December event, while a hay ride was the peak of February delights.

Officers were: Ted Shepardson, president; Marge Reed, vice-president; Kits Thayer, recording secretary; Bobby Miehke, corresponding secretary; Bill Phippen, treasurer; Ginny Tripp, publicity manager.

Academic Activities Board

Early Breakfast

The Academic Activities Board as explained by Professor Frank Prentice Rand, is now a less active organization than it was when Massachusetts State College was smaller. At this time its main function is to supervise the financial administration of such activities as the Collegian, the INDEX, the Glee Clubs, and the Roister Doisters. The rest of the business of each particular organization is carried on by the staff and the advisors of that particular group. At the time of the reorganization of the college, the Academic Activities Board was a very active and influential body.

In addition, the Board is in charge of the awards given to outstanding students for their work in extracurricular activities: the gold and silver medals, the manager's award of fifty dollars, and the Conspicuous Service trophy.

The Academic Activities Board consists of the manager of each undergraduate organization, two members elected by the associated alumni, two faculty members appointed by the President, and the President himself.

Athletics

Football

Coach Walter Hargesheimer had but two weeks to whip a green eleven into shape for the opening game against the University of Connecticut. Lack of height in the backfield, the loss of the team's co-captains, Jack McDonough and Gil Santin, to the Naval Air Corps, and the team's lightness caused his biggest headaches. The opener clearly showed State's lack of experience as the University of Connecticut won, 26-0. Don Campbell, '44, punting out of danger time and again, sparked the Maroon and White.

The Vermont University game found State again the underdog, 14-6, as fumbles caused defeat. The State goal was a final-period aerial tossed by Campbell to Fran Keough, '46. Then followed State's snappiest game. Although Rhode Island State won 21-6, the Hargymen held the Rams scoreless for the first half. Ward Shannon, '45, heaved a short pass to Keough for the only State goal. Worcester Tech, first State victim, lost 18-6 on scores by Campbell, Keough and Chick Bourdeau, '45.

The annual Amherst classic on October 31 found fair weather for a change but State lost to the undefeated Jeffmen, this time, 43-0.

Clarkson Tech came to Alumni Field and went home defeated, 13-9, after long runs by Campbell and Ed Fedeli, '44. The year's finale was the traditional Tufts game at Medford. In sub-zero wind and on an icy field, the Statesmen were edged by a single goal and conversion, 7-0.

Thus ended a drab season of two wins and five losses. Don Campbell and Ed Fedeli were the outstanding backfield men while Dick Norton, '44 and Chick Bourdeau bolstered the line. Campbell's passing left a little to be desired while Fedeli's change from half to fullback caused some uncertainty in that position. Summed up, the team's failure was one of experience, not of spirit or ability.

Captain Russ

Cross Country

The 1942 State Cross Country team had an exciting but disheartening season; all six meets were losses, often only by a narrow margin.

Outstanding were Captain Russ McDonald and Freshman Alec Campbell. For McDonald, it marked the culmination of three years of competition. Always a worker, Russ was a real captain and the team's driving spirit. For Campbell, it marked the first year that he had ever run in Cross Country. The results were edifying.

The opening meet was held at State against M.I.T. on October 17, the Engineers downing the Derbymen 19-39. Al Campbell crossed the finish only three seconds behind the winner, while second State man was Jack Dunn, '46. The harriers next met Amherst on the State course. The Maroon and White went down, heartbreakingly, by a single point, 27-28. Al Campbell was again second, with Russ McDonald in fifth place, George Caldwell, '44 in sixth, and Dunn in seventh. The Statesmen, then were nosed out by Worcester Tech., 27-29. For the third consecutive meet, Al Campbell took a second place. Caldwell was fourth, Dunn was sixth, and Earle Newton, '44 was eighth. Springfield proved to be state's fourth undoing, winning 15-50 with a seven-man tie for first place, shutting State out almost completely.

Best work of the season was done in the Connecticut Valley Championships held on November 3 at Storrs. Here, State placed second out of a field of four including Springfield, University of Connecticut, and U. S. Coast Guard. Captain McDonald was first State man, in tenth position. Closely following were Campbell in eleventh, Ray Hollis '44, Bob Phippen '46, and Jack Dunn.

The final meet, the New England Intercollegiates at Boston, found State pretty slow, as Russ McDonald was the first man to finish with a mere 43rd. Although it was not a successful season, much new talent was discovered.

Captain Podolak

Soccer

Coach Larry Briggs' Soccer team had a satisfactory season even though the record of one win, three ties and four losses seems at first unimpressive. The last two games of the season, however, found the booters finishing strong as they tied a powerful Harvard team and an undefeated Rensselaer squad.

The first game was played at Storrs against a fighting University of Connecticut team. It was a good start as Captain Ed Podolak led his team off the field the victors 2-1. Outstanding in this game was the duel of fullbacks, Podolak for State and Beck for U. Conn.

State's second game was a different story. In a home game, the Big Green of Dartmouth set the Statesmen on their heels. Phil Iampietro booted in an equalizer minutes later, but it was Dartmouth's game from then on, 5-1.

The U. S. Coast Guard game at New London found State against an equally strong opponent. The Guardsmen led at the half 1-0. In the second half, Coach Briggs shifted John Giannotti, '44, to the left inside position where he shortly equalled the score. Scrimmage was decidedly in State's favor, but somehow the punch was lacking at the goal.

In the ensuing three games, State was overwhelmed. First it was 5-0 by Williams, then 4-2 by Trinity, and finally, 4-0 by Amherst. Outstanding however, was the work of "Toodie" Stebbins at center-half, who substituted for Stan Gizieniski, '43, injured at Coast Guard. Ed Podolak and John Giannotti showed up well in defense, and Jack Donovan, '46, and Chick Bourdeau, '45, in offense.

The last two games were excellent comebacks. With the two Gizieniskis at center forward and inside, State seemed to have the necessary drive. The results were encouraging as the scores indicate, 2-2 and 2-1.

This was the first season that freshmen have played varsity ball. Stebbins, Donovan, Czarnecki and Foster showed good play for the Class of '46. As for the veterans, Captain Ed Podolak, Stan Gizieniski and John Giannotti were outstanding.

Bokina

Basketball

State court fortunes during the 1942-43 season were characteristic of most State seasons of late. State won five and lost eight. Coach Hargesheimer feels this was partly due to war hysteria and that in normal times, the same team should have had a good season.

The opener against Clark found State starting with a 49-25 win. Big Tad Bokina racked up 16 points and Tom Kelly 13. The next game against a Westover Field service team was likewise a walk-away for the Maroon and White as the Airmen went home on the short end of a 77-29 score. Bokina sank 19, Dick Maloy 13, and Kelly 10.

State then tangled with a fast Springfield College quintet. The Hargymen pulled this one out of the fire by a slim 53-51 verdict. Bucky Bokina sank 28 markers while Stan Waskiewicz won 10 points.

State's first setback came from Williams 43-41. Tied up with but seconds to go, a one-handed Williams shot downed State.

This probably had a psychological effect on the team, for although it beat A.I.C. 60-48, the offensive spark was lacking.

In the Amherst epic, State then managed to go off the floor a point ahead at the half. But with Podolak out of the game on personal fouls, the State defenses crumbled, and Amherst rolled up 50 points to State's 29.

The Wesleyan game was another shoddy affair. State had the potential ability to wallop the Wesmen but, again, something was lacking in the way of drive and State lost, 38-34.

The Rhode Island massacre was more or less expected as the Keany-coached "Miracle Team" threw 121 points to State's 78. Oddly enough, State out-pointed the Rams in the second half, but the first half margin was unsurmountable.

After three successive defeats, State finally broke into the win column against Tufts, 62-59, in a game of heads-up ball on the Statesmen's parts.

The second game against Amherst was the best of the year as far as spirit was concerned. Led by Captain Ray Knee-land, a game State team came very close to knocking off the Jeffs, but balance and power won, 41-36.

The remaining three games of the year were also disappointments for State as it was defeated by the University of Connecticut, Worcester Tech and Coast Guard, but the games uncovered new talent in Ed McGrath and Warren Anderson.

All in all, State's difficulties originated in a lack of good defense. Bokina was high individual scorer of the year with 156 points made in nine games, giving him a season average of 17.3 points per game.

This team will probably be the last quintet to wear the Maroon and White for the duration. Statesmen wish, however, that these same athletes will be able to return to the scenes of their triumphs in the not-too-distant future.

Led by "Soft Spoken" Joe Rogers, aided and abetted by Captain George Tilley, Luther Gare, and flashy "Bud" Hall, Massachusetts State College's mermen once more completed a splendid season, one which for quality of performance was much better than the 1941-1942 season. They boosted their ten-year win-loss average well above the .800 mark by winning five out of seven starts, and broke six established records in the process.

The team opened its season by crushing Worcester in a big way, 57-18. Manchester's second in a blistering 200-yard breaststroke was the only event in which the natators did not garner a first. While there, Hall broke the pool and New England records in the 60- and 100-yard dashes, his times being 29.1 and 52.4 respectively, while Capt. Tilley lowered the pool record to 1:144.2 in his backstroke event. This Worcester win was followed by a session in the hospital for Coach "Indispensable" Joe, his absence resulting in a 32-43 defeat at the hands of a superior Williams combine. However, the team recovered with Joe and downed the University of Connecticut, 42-24.

Coffey, Munroe, Niedjela, Coughlan, Coach Rogers
Hayes, Schiffer, Tilley, Gare, Hall

When the unfortunate Boston University swimmers came to State, they returned home with a 56-19 thrashing. Jim Coffey's first win in the 440-freestyle came in this meet.

In the next game, the Rogersmen went down to New Haven to bow before Yale's international champions, 15-60, phenomenal Alan Ford beating Hall out of a blur turn to win the 50-yard event with 22.8 to Hall's flat 23.

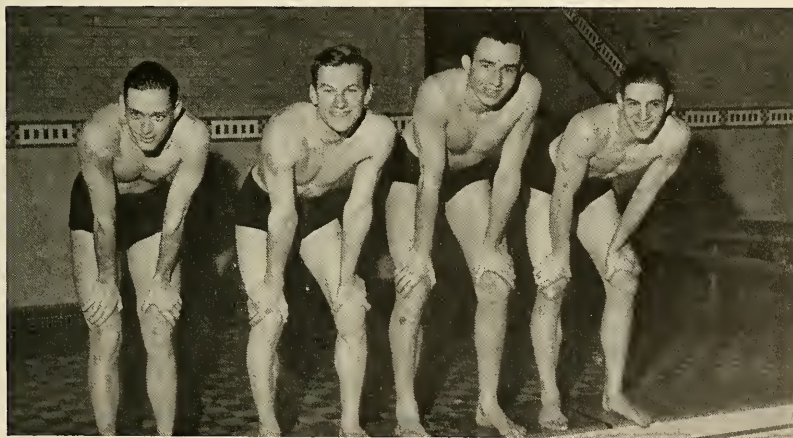

At the subsequent M.I.T. meet, the relay team did the long expected, cutting the college and pool record to 3:43.9, while George Tilley did the same to the backstroke record in 1:43 flat. Coast Guard next visited the local chlorine, to be beaten, 50-25.

At the New England Inter-Collegiate at Amherst, the mermen placed fourth. Hall cut the pool record to 23.4 in the 50-yard and outclassed Ammon of Amherst in the 100. State's record-breaking freestyle relay of Niedjela, Gare, Tilley, and Hall was forced to take a second, being touched out by Amherst. Tilley's third in the backstroke completed the point-getting.

Hats must go off to "Bud" Hall, whose hairbreadth finishes despite the quality of the opposition have prompted Vern Miller to dub him the "Seabiscuit" of swimming, to George Tilley, with one of the best backstroke turns in America and the least to say about it—or anything, to Luther Gare and Max Niedjela in the 220 department, to Jim "Demitasse" Coffey and Bob Monroe in the 440, to Bob Shiller and Jack Coughlin, who seldom lost a diving event, to Kirby Hayes, Hall's sprint partner, to Ransow and Manchester in the breaststroke, and to such promising freshmen as Bill Stowe, Jack Lambert, Jim Van Meter, Bill Hall, and Dave Roberts. And finally, orchids to the man responsible for all this, and, for State's money, the best swimming coach in this or any other state, Joe Rogers.

They've swum their last meet for M. S. C.

Skiing has become so popular at State in the last few years that the winter of 1942-1943 saw the organization of a ski club, combining the experts of the ski team with the much larger recreational group. The success of the club was largely due to the spirit of its members, for during the season a new ski hill was cleared behind Thatcher Hall, slalom flags were constructed by the coeds, and a well-balanced program of events was carried out. The club's season terminated in the Winter Carnival in which most of the sixty-odd members competed.

The ski team, captained by veteran Joe Tosi, was supported by capable freshmen. Off to a good start against Worcester Tech and Worcester Ski Club, State's club was prevented from further competition when the Army called most of the freshmen members into the mountain troops.

After the war, with the return of such men and more support from the college, State may perhaps be able to boast of its ski team.

Tosi, finished!

Winter Track

Like Spring Track, the 1943 winter schedule consisted of but three short meets, of which the Derbymen won two and placed second in a triangular.

The initial meet on February 13th found a flashy State mile-relay team breezing past Colby and Worcester Tech for a first in the BAA meets at Boston. Charlie Warner, '44, Captain Don Parker, '44, Al Campbell, '46, and Bob Phippen, '46 won by a 75-yard margin.

In the next meet M.S.C. routed the Worcester Tech Engineers by a 55-26 score, taking six firsts out of nine events.

The final meet was a triangular against WPI and Tufts. State bowed to a superior Jumbo outfit as it rolled up 63 points against State's 38. Tech trailed with 9. At this meet records were shattered as Charlie Warner broke his own 300-yard one set at the Worcester contest in 33.4 seconds, whereas Don Parker set a new College Record in the 1000-yard run of 2 minutes, 20.4 seconds.

The accelerated war program brought about a curtailment of 1942 Spring Track, resulting in a short but spirited schedule of three meets for the Statesmen.

The brilliant work of diminutive Charlie Warner '44 and rangy Don Parker '44 characterized the opener against Boston University on April 25th. State walloped the Beantowners $94\frac{1}{2}$ - $40\frac{1}{2}$ as Warner took firsts in the "100," "220," and 220-yard low hurdles. Parker won both the quarter and half-mile runs.

The next meet, a triangular against Worcester Tech and the University of Connecticut at Worcester, found State in bottom position. Warner again won the low hurdles, while Jack McDonough '42, and Captain Bill Wall '42, took firsts in the discus and the high jump.

The final meet on May 9th saw a greatly superior Tufts squad beat State, $38\frac{1}{2}$ - $87\frac{1}{2}$. Wins for State included Don Parker's first in the half-mile and Milt Barnes' first in the javelin.

Lack of pitching power turned a potentially good State baseball team into a loser in the Spring of 1942.

Coach Fran Riel had high hopes in pre-season practice. Behind the plate, he had veteran catcher Matty Ryan, a real spark-plug and a good hitter; at first, a promising sophomore, Bob Ryan, also a powerful hitter; at second, Art Irzyk, fast and a good infield man; at third, either Tom Tolman or Bill Mahan; at short, veteran Dick Maloy, thus completing a strong infield. The outfield likewise had slugging power with Big Ben Freitas at left field, Russ Clarke at center and Captain Ed Sparks at right. The pitching staff, however, was Coach Riel's worry. Of nine fairly good arms, not one was outstanding. The seniors were Herb Gross, Ace Thayer, Jim Bullock, Red Mullaney, and George Kimball. Juniors included Howie Bangs and Les Rich, whereas sophomores Russ Bosworth and Herm Barenboim joined the varsity.

In the opener against Wesleyan on April 18th, the Statesmen dropped a 16-9 verdict. Kimball started the game but was soon knocked out of the box as the Wesmen hammered across two runs. Mullaney replaced Kimball, but the Wesmen continued the rampage with three more runs. He held rather well until the sixth when the Cardinals uncorked a scoring spree of nine runs. Mullaney was replaced by Bosworth but the Wesmen scored one more before the close. For State, Maloy and Bob Ryan each got two runs.

The next three games were repetitions of the first. The Rielmen were defeated by the University of Connecticut 6-2. Again, Maloy and Bob Ryan scored the only State runs. The Amherst game was well played defensively but the Sabrinas nevertheless downed State by a 4-0 verdict. The Trinity College nine whacked the Maroon and White for the fourth time by 9-5.

Then State chalked up its first win of the season against the Bradley Air Base team 13-5. Sam Price was high scorer with three while Moore and Freitas had two apiece. Price also clouted one for a home circuit while Bob Ryan poked one well out for a three sacker.

The next game against Westover Field was a setback 11-6. The Rielmen retaliated, however, by winning their last three games. They beat WPI decisively, 14-0. They nosed out Westover in a return match 7-6, and again beat Bradley Air Base 8-6.

Ending a mediocre season of four wins and five defeats, the last three games showed much improved pitching and teamwork.

Commando Course

Beginning the second semester, compulsory physical education for all male students was inaugurated under the college war program. It called for four hours per week devoted to physical conditioning in order to harden the student for the armed services.

A Commando Course was therefore designed by Mr. Thomas Eck which combined all the physical exercises expected under actual combat conditions.

Mr. Eck, after studying current literature and observing courses at neighboring schools, set about to design one without the shortcomings of most. It consisted of ten obstacles, all readily removable and built from materials at hand by Mr. Paradycz of the grounds department.

The total expenditure was but $34.50.

The course itself was laid out at intervals on the Cage track. The first obstacle consisted of a regulation three foot high hurdle ten yards from the starting line. Students were taught the approved form for taking the hurdle, starting again if it were knocked over. The second and most difficult obstacle was the rope climb. Four ropes were suspended from a ceiling girder and the student was required to climb hand-over-hand to a height of fifteen feet as marked on the rope. The "V" run consisted of a 21-foot trough with an angle of 45 degrees between sides through which the student had to run.

Derby, Briggs, Ball and Eck check

Hand-over-hand

The balance beam was simply a 2" by 6" plank turned edge wise and supported 12" off the ground. This tested equilibrium, but eliminated the possibility of a serious fall. The next obstacle consisted of a 14-foot overhead ladder with an uphill incline of one foot which had to be traversed by hand, swinging from rung to rung. A low hurdle, two-and-a-half feet off the ground, was the seventh obstacle. This was followed by a hand-over-hand travel beam 12 feet in length. The ninth obstacle was the Chicken Roost Crawl, consisting of an 18 foot wire covered enclosure with a 24 inch opening at one end and a 12 inch opening at the other, to be crawled through on the stomach. The final obstacle consisted of a five-foot vault in fence-vaulting style.

The obstacles were so arranged that arm and leg muscles were exercised alternately. Also, so chosen that the student had to employ most physical skills.

All students were properly warmed up and instructed before they were allowed to run the course. With few exceptions, all showed marked improvement in both time and form over the course by the end of the season. Most students were definitely in better condition as the results of the Burpee and Brouha Tests indicated.

Good sportsmanship

W A A

Initiation to a knowledge of the Women's Athletic Association of campus is given early in the school year to the freshmen and students of Massachusetts State College on Play Day when coeds leave dignity and formality to participate in and witness a panorama of women's sports. From this time on a varied and inclusive program is followed through to the end of the year, consisting of water and dance exhibitions and class, sorority, and dorm competition in sports.

The organization is headed by a Board consisting of a president, vice-president, and secretary; an athletic council comprised of student captains of each sport, and the director of Physical Education for women. Although all women students are associate members of the organization, voting power is restricted to those who participate in at least one of the representative sports. Awards for excellence are made annually at a sports banquet, and a blazer is awarded to the junior who shows the greatest cooperation, ability in all sports, and good sportsmanship.

Student Body

The Student Body once meant a cloistered group, most of whom were safely sheltered from the brutalities of extra-mural life. Of course there were a few who had to work while attending college, a few who worried about the moral problems of the universe, half-a-hundred who subscribed to newspapers, and some swing and jazz fans who braved the outside world in their worship of drummers and horn-blowers; but these were not the norm.

This year the student body is something else. It has organized the War Council, buying war-stamp corsages, donating blood to the Red Cross, shoveling snow from railroad tracks to free transportation. It "praised the Lord and passed its contributions" in much increased amounts to the Community Chest. War stamps were bought with coke money; letters written to ex-classmates drafted or called up with the Enlisted Reserve Corps or special reserves; socks knitted by the feminine half of the student body; and dorms given up to the Army Air Corps by the masculine.

The Student Body has faced life.

Rev. Easton, Miss Deane, Miss Walker, Chornesky
Kelly, Miss Brown, Hicks

Although the mercury in Fahrenheit thermometers remained below the freezing mark, that in the M.S.C. Community Chest thermometer rose steadily from November 19 until December 15 when the $2500 goal was reached, a $1000 increase over last year's amount.

Fraternity and sorority presidents devised a budget which divided the sum among the following organizations: Red Cross, United Service Organization, World Student Service Fund, Camp Anderson, and Army and Navy Relief Fund. Working with co-chairmen Jean Brown and John Hicks in conducting this year's drive were Barbara Walker, Margaret Deane, Alice Maguire, and George Chornesky. Reverend Mr. Easton served as faculty adviser.

Methods of heating the mercury were varied. Conscientious collectors approached students for maximum contributions; the memorable Faculty-Coed field hockey game on November 14 yielded cold cash; such campus groups as the Senate supported the drive enthusiastically.

Intercollegiate Athletics

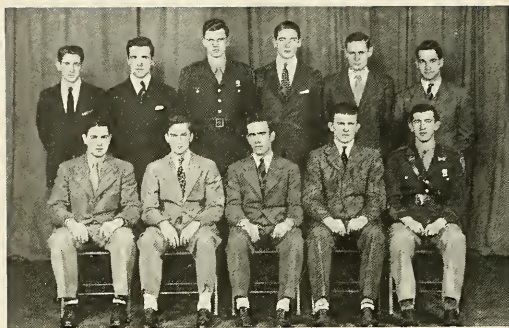

Winning the "M"

The Joint Committee on Intercollegiate Activities was composed this year of the student managers of each varsity sport, President Baker ex-officio, Dean Lanphear, Professor Ellert, College Treasurer Robert Hawley, and Alumni Earle S. Carpenter, Frederick McLaughlin, and Theoren Warner. It administered matters of finance, fields, constructions, and athletic policies; it approved schedules, and awarded letters.

Eligibility of freshmen to take part in varsity sports was the year's most important decision. In the fall, the committee voted that a football captain be appointed before each game, since the captains-elect, Santin and McDonough, had joined the Navy. The election of Co-captains Stan Salwak and Johnny Storozuk fulfilled the condition that an honorary captain of the helmet-and-cleat team be elected at the end of the season.

The committee deemed it advisable to go through with the basketball schedule, but because of the war stated there would be no formal spring track or baseball.

Senate

In spite of welcoming the freshmen in the usual manner, the Senate early felt the effect of war on the campus. A lessened social program, changes in committees, and a general adjustment of the students' government to war conditions were some of the problems it faced.

One innovation was the writing of a Senate column in the Collegian by Robert Fitzpatrick, president. Another was having the election ballots brought to places of residence by the Senators.

Contrary to the campus impression that others have the honor and the students the system, the honor system has proved itself a successful W.S.G.A. policy. Offenders of rules voluntarily report to their own house council to receive punishment. Another innovation, the Quadrangle Club, was founded for the union of non-sorority girls. Officers of the year were Dorothy Dunklee, president; Marian Whitecomb, vice-president; Frances Albrecht, treasurer.

Adelphia

Adelphia to freshmen means smooth maroon jackets with emblazoned pockets; to the sophomores, fellows always ready to help; to juniors, a goal; and to seniors, recognition of those who have proved themselves most worthy Statesmen. "Promotion of good fellowship and the fostering of the highest ideals at M.S.C." has been its aim since founding. Members of the M.S.C.'s 1943 honorary group were Stewart Bush, Robert Fitzpatrick, Murray Casper, Stanley Polchlopek, and Philip Vetterling.

Smooth, tailored grey jackets distinguish the seven "Women of the Year" on State's campus. Chosen for their versatility, academic activities, and character were Marge Stanton, Daphne Miller, Jean Brown, Mary Jean Carpenter, Dorothy Dunklee, Harriet Kelso and Janet Milner.

"Coediquette," pride of Isogon, came to life this fall as timely advice was acted out at a party for freshmen. Ushering, guiding visitors, and cooperating with other organizations were Isogon duties.

Maroon Key

Fifteen white hats with maroon keys were visible on campus as the sophomore boys attempted to instill in the freshmen a love of music, dance, the college pond, and early rising. The sophomore honorary society, besides welcoming the freshmen, played host to visiting teams and guests, served on other committees and faithfully earned their Senate-bestowed pins. Maroon Key's officers were President Bob Butler, Vice-president Don Kinsman, and Secretary Jim Burke.

At pre-battle rallies held on autumnal Friday nights, M.S.C.'s maroon and white clad "rah, rah" team, official distributors of enthusiasm and sound, buoyed State's spirits during a slightly sad football season. Ex-cheerleader Gordie Smith's hand-picked bevy of hardy-lunged beauties included Pat Anderson, Betty Bates, Helen Beaumont, Barbara Bigelow, and Sandy Stafford; masculine cheerers were Norm Vanasse, Ken Bliss, Don Glaser, Wimpy Milliken, Bill Ryan.

Interfraternity Council, coordinator of bull sessions and controller of campus brotherhoods, has complete charge of rushing, hell week, banquets, the declamation contest, extracurricular activities, house inspections, winter carnival sculptures and the awarding of cups and plaques. Officers of the Council were James McCarthy, president; Murray Casper, vice-president; Charles Warner, secretary; Thomas Devaney, treasurer; and Dr. Helming, faculty advisor.

This year, with the coming of the third national sorority on campus, the gavel fell announcing the end of Intersorority Council and heralding the innovation of the Pan-Hellenic Association. Rushing, declamation and sing, teas for patrons and patronesses, and "house-warming" at Sigma Iota have all fallen under the council's jurisdiction. Credit for the leadership of this group goes to Mary Jean Carpenter, president; Mary Bowler, vice-president; Aileen Perkins, secretary.

Congress for inter-faith activities at M.S.C., the United Religious Council is composed of three representatives each from the Newman Club, Menorah-Hillel, and the Student Christian Association. Officers for this year were Philip Vetterling, president; Katherine Stone, vice-president; Eugene Wein, secretary. With the assistance of Rev. Easton, the council selected speakers for Vesper Services and monthly lectures, and supervised other student religious organizations.

The Student Christian Association, taking the place of the old Christian Federation this year, purposes to foster non-sectarian Christianity. Its activities included discussion groups, helping at the local Hope Church and monthly open meetings for Protestants on campus. Editor Bob Stedman published Scan, the association news. Officers were Philip Vetterling, president; Janet Milner, vice-president; Miriam LeMay, secretary; and Dorothy Maraspin, treasurer.

Newman Club

Miss Stone, O'Brien, Miss Mason

The Newman Club, uniting Catholic students of the college and promoting their spiritual, intellectual and social development, this year scheduled monthly meetings, monthly communion, and a dance each semester although plans could not always be completed. Officers for 1942-1943 were President Robert O'Brien, Vice-President Katherine Stone, Secretary-Treasurer Shirley Mason, Publicity Manager Henry Martin, and Religious Representative Edward Nebesky.

The Wesley Foundation, organized to foster a spirit of comradeship among Methodist students, sponsored Sunday evening discussions, suppers, and recreational programs. This year lively discussions on current events and post war problems were held at the Mt. Pleasant home of hospitable Dr. and Mrs. Lindsey. Foundation officers for 1942-1943 were Marjorie Reed, president; Lawrence Newcomb, secretary-treasurer; and Dorothy Lent, personnel manager.

Miss Miller, Miss Sheldon, Milliken, Miss Maraspin

Purposing to centralize Episcopalian students of the college, the Phillips Brooks Club enjoyed a varied program this year under the management of President Horace Milliken, Vice-President Doris Sheldon, Secretary Dorothy Maraspin, and Treasurer Daphne Miller. Informal suppers and discussions at the 4-H Club House aided in broadening student views—both social and religious. Rev. Peter Sturtevant, local Episcopalian minister, assisted the club in its programs.

Menorah-Hillel, again this year, successfully carried out its purposes of “promoting cultural Judaism, and fellowship among Jewish students” under new advisor Rabbi Herschel Levin. Semi-monthly meetings, discussion groups, Friday evening services, and the Hillel News were sponsored by this year’s officers: Daniel G. Horvitz, president; Agnes Goldberg, vice-president; Sylvia Rossman, corresponding secretary; Helen Glagovsky, recording secretary.

Honor Commission

Miss Gutfinski, Dean Machmer, Miss Maguire, Powell

The Honor Commission promotes wholesome examination conditions. Its faculty members are appointed by the President; its student ones elected by the students.

Its functions, states Dr. Goldberg, its secretary, are "preventive and advisory, rather than executive and punitive; concerned much more with morale than with policing and convicting. It places responsibility for proper examination conditions upon each instructor individually, and upon the members of each class."

Representative of the student body in the war effort is the Student War Council which works with the Faculty War Council. Led by Bob Denis, it included Mary Jean Carpenter, Jack Coughlan, Dot Dunklee, Bob Fitzpatrick, Mike Kelly, Cynthia Leete, Marge Stanton, and Elaine Schultz. It sold war stamp corsages at the Military Ball, aroused interest in Red Cross blood donations, and supervised an Emergency War Corps to alleviate the man-power shortage.

Senior Class Officers

With the war causing an accelerated program and generally shortening everyone's leisure, class elections were delayed until March. Officers of the Class of 1943 would have had short terms except that fifty percent of their number—President Bob Fitzpatrick, Vice-President Mary Jean Carpenter, and Secretary Blanche Gutfinski—were officers last year. Others elected were Treasurer Dave Marsden, Sergeant-at-arms Russ McDonald, and Captain Stan Hood.

Half of the Class of 1944's officers, President Bob Denis, Secretary Peg Deane, and Sergeant-at-arms Edwin Fedeli, were also reelected. Other officers elected were Shirley Mason, vice-president; Dave Bush, treasurer; and Chet Mann, captain. The class solved its main problem, the status of sophomores who attended summer school, by voting into the junior class only those who had entered M.S.C. in 1940 or who had transferred to the class from other colleges.

Junior Class Officers

*I hope I can finish, cause I'm on lap 3
But a fellow with whisker, is right behind me*

Stead, Coughlan, Miss Stafford, Anderson

Only one officer of the Class of 1945, Secretary Barbara Walker, was reelected to original office; but Warren Anderson, former treasurer, was chosen president. Others elected were Kay Dellea, vice-president; Jim Coffey, treasurer; Arthur Peck, captain, and Joe Kunces, sergeant-at-arms. The class faced the same problem as the juniors. However, the action taken by the latter made unnecessary any further discussion, as straying sophomores returned to the fold.

Following the tradition of incoming classes, a freshman committee consisting of President Mark Kelly, Vice-President Elaine Schultz, and Members Bob Cerie, Bob Fitzgerald, and Ann Nugent, was chosen by the Class of 1946 at arrival. In the spring the freshmen organized as a class, and elected John Donovan, president; Elaine Shultz, vice-president; John Delevoryas, treasurer; Marion McCarthy, secretary; Ed McGrath, sergeant-at-arms; and Ray O'Neill, captain.

*school in summer? well, I should say
I'd rather go taking any day*

In a daze for days and days—this was the state of affairs in the 1942 summer school. Classes started on June 1, with twelve full, hot weeks stretching to the horizon. The end of the first week revealed that the session was to be no “sissy work.” Sixty academic courses, taught by the winter school faculty, were offered. In addition, courses of shorthand and typing were squeezed in for credit.

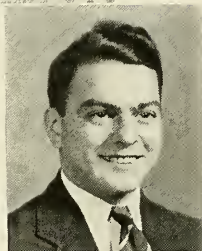

Coasting through a “Pats” or an “Ec” book in six weeks seemed inconceivable, but students and professors performed superhuman feats. Days went by, each like the preceding, for most classes met Monday through Friday. A sophomore’s dream of no Saturday classes come true. That day was to recuperate.

Even though they had much to accomplish, most of the two-hundred twenty-seven “summer-schoolers” went home with a tan. Many boys got theirs from working in the fields, and the girls from living on Butterfield’s terrace.

The faculty, feeling that summer school was quite successful, formed similar plans, with the knowledge of new emergencies, for the coming summer.

Raymond A. Weinhold

In Memoriam

His college classmates knew Raymond Arnold Weinhold as a tall, lean boy with a friendly grin who unfolded himself when he rose from his chair. The members of Sinfonietta knew him as the capable violinist whom they had chosen their manager. His brethren of Alpha Sigma Phi knew Ray as an "all-around good kid" who was a good sport both socially and athletically; he was Marshal of his fraternity, and played on its basketball team. Not only was Ray a conscientious fraternal officer and orchestral impresario, but also a good worker scholastically, especially in his major subject, Forestry.

September eleventh, 1921, was his birthday; and Worcester his birthplace. He graduated from Worcester South High School in 1939, and entered Massachusetts State College with the Class of 1943. Spurred by patriotic fervor, Ray enlisted in the Navy in June, 1942, receiving his preliminary training at the United States Naval Hospital at Chelsea.

While Raymond Weinhold, Pharmacist's Mate, Third Class, U.S.N., was returning to his station at the Naval Convalescent Hospital at Harriman, New York, on November twentieth, 1942, at the end of his leave, the truck in which he was riding as a passenger collided with another truck. Ray will never finish his Forestry course.

Acknowledgments

The 1943 INDEX Board wishes to thank publicly:

Professor Lawrence S. Dickinson who explained the intricacies of contracts and postage, and managed high (or INDEX) finance

Doctor Maxwell H. Goldberg whose pep talks inspired

Technical Assistant Lois Doubleday Kuralowicz who threw out the life-line and rescued the 1943 INDEX

Harold Johnson and Dino Valz of The Andover Press who handled literary, statistics, and sports copy

Sargent Studio's intermediary, Irving Green, and photographer, Charlie Ianello who snapped scenes, seniors, and informal shots

Advertisements

The 1943 INDEX wishes to thank the following advertisers for their whole-hearted support in these trying times. While most businesses are cutting down on advertising copy, you people of Amherst have stood by us and aided us in publishing this book. Many thanks to you, and may you all enjoy success and prosperity in the better days that are to come.

WHICH is the easiest on your eyes?

☛ Because intelligent men and women spend a good part of their lives reading the printed word, the question of easy readability of type is no mere academic one. But since no two people see type through the same pair of eyes, this has been a difficult question to answer. For people as a whole there may be no answer.

Perhaps it is only as people are divided into age groups that a solution is possible. A type which is easy to read during childhood may not be the most legible to read during middle or old age.

In an attempt to solve this problem, Carl P. Rollins of the Yale University Press conducted a University Type Test Poll in the following eight colleges and universities: Louisiana State, Mills, Amherst, Princeton, Harvard, Simmons, Syracuse, and Pennsylvania. The results of this poll show that of the twelve type selections submitted, Garamond, Scotch, and Baskerville were preferred in that order.

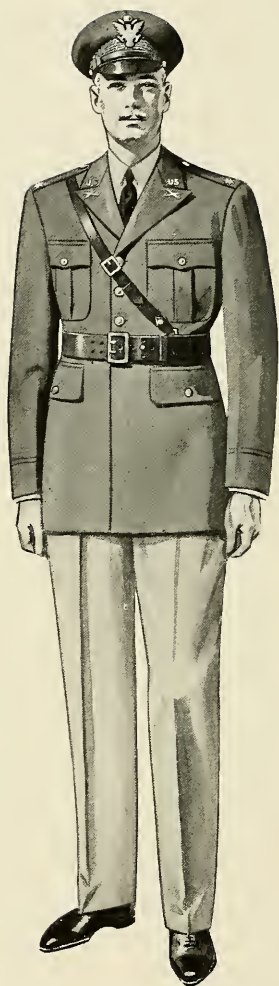

*For art in printing is not the way
Of wild extravagance, weird display,
But rather the unobtrusive thrall
Of type that gives you no shock at all,
But draws your eyes to the page with zest
And holds your mind to the thought expressed;
We must keep ourselves to this simple creed,
Type was made—and is meant—to READ!*

That this firm should have had fine versions of these three distinguished book faces for some years previous to the test indicates that we had foreseen and met the preferences of our college clients even before those preferences became articulate.

It's a problem . . .

These days a man hardly knows what to do when it comes to clothes—conflicting rumors stymie him! We have no rumors but we do have a complete selection of all wool suits tailored by ADLER-ROCHESTER—and we don't know when we'll be able to get more. So if you need a suit, draw your own conclusions . . . and come in now!
